

Anansi the spider

A good meal deserves another

Anansi the spider hates to share.

One day, Turtle comes to his house for lunch.

Anansi: I can't give you food until you have washed your dirty feet! Go to the river to wash!

Turtle politely walks to the river to wash.

When he returns, there is nothing left.

The plate is empty.

Anansi: Ah! Good meal!

Turtle: A good meal deserves another.
Come to my house for dinner tomorrow!

The following day, Turtle cooks a fine dinner at the bottom of the river.

Anansi fills his pockets with stones so that he can stay at the bottom of the river.

Anansi: Yummy! I am hungry!

Turtle: It is impolite to wear a jacket for dinner!
Take it off please!

Without his jacket, Anansi floats back up to the surface!
Goodbye table! Goodbye dinner!

Turtle: Yummy! Good meal!